SEC-03 Watching the Watchers

Know when someone is watching — before they know you've seen them.

BOTTOM LINE UP FRONT

SEC-03 teaches you how a surveillance team actually organizes, moves, and thinks — team roles, the box, the leap-frog, and the difference between fixed, mobile, and technical collection. It is an awareness course: two lessons, open to any member who has completed SEC-02. It does not train you to actively detect or counter surveillance — that operational skill is SEC-07.

WHY THIS MATTERS

Most people who notice something off never learn to trust or act on it. A parked car that's been there twice, a person who lingers too long, a pattern that doesn't fit — without knowing how surveillance actually operates, these read as nothing. With this course, they read as data.

▶ There is no other preparedness course that teaches civilian surveillance recognition to this level of doctrinal grounding — sourced from FM 2-22.3, FM 34-2-1, MCRP 3-11.3, AR 530-1, and the Camp X SOE Training Manual.

THE TWO LESSONS

1	Team Structure and Method How a professional surveillance team organizes and moves — eyeball, floaters, control, the box, and the leap-frog — and why understanding it is the foundation for everything that follows.
2	Recognizing and Understanding the Threat Fixed vs. mobile vs. technical surveillance in practice, what collectors are actually after, and the specific vulnerabilities every surveillance effort shares no matter how well it's run.

HOW THIS COURSE WORKS

Doctrine first	FM 2-22.3, FM 34-2-1, MCRP 3-11.3, AR 530-1, and the Camp X SOE Training Manual, adapted for civilian MAG intelligence and security roles.
Application second	Every concept is tied to a real MAG scenario — a meeting site, a regular errand, a member's routine — not abstract theory.
Knowledge checks	Four to five questions per lesson test application, not recall. Right answers include full reasoning; 80% required to complete each lesson.
Prerequisites	SEC-02: Know What You're Showing must be complete. No equipment required. SEC-07: Watching the Watchers — Operations continues where SEC-03 ends.
